This technology is safe to use for both pets and their owners

What is ONDAMED?

The name ONDAMED is latin for "Wave Medicine."

This technology was invented in 1993 in Germany and is now used worldwide.

Practitioners apply this non-invasive technology and the biofeedback loop to scan the body for underlying dysfunctions such as inflammation, infection and trauma, residing at the cellular level. Such areas prove to be the source of disease and symptoms, yet they are difficult to find with traditional testing. Identified areas are then treated with focused pulsed electromagnetic fields to stimulate tissue and the nervous system.

ONDAMED accurately delivers specific therapy to the source of the illness

ONDAMED is unique in its ability to deliver specific frequencies directly to the source of the illness or pain, not just at the site of the injury. ONDAMED jump-starts the body's immune functions and directs the immune system response to the inflamed or infected areas. The stimulated tissue results in improved metabolic and lymphatic functions, detoxification of the cells and reduction of pain and inflammation.

ONDAMED is non-invasive and totally safe to use on your pet, regardless of type, size or age. The customized treatment is painless, usually ranging between 30-60 minutes and is done in the comfort of your veterinarian's office. Although the response does vary, many pets feel better after only a few treatments.

"After all," says Rolf Binder, the inventor of ONDAMED, "It's the specific tissue we treat, and not just a symptom or disease."

ONDAMED detects hidden abnormalities which often go untreated

"Ask any sheep farmer and they will tell you that a down sheep is a dead sheep. ONDAMED is the only thing I know of that can bring my sheep to their feet and have them drinking and eating within several hours. Every veterinarian should have this technology in their office. Animals respond so quickly to ONDAMED's vibrational frequencies. It gives me such joy to see my sick animals regain their health. It's absolutely amazing."
